

The Liar's Contest

In this game, the only way to win is to stop playing.

If the time delay is long enough, or the record keeping is bad enough, nobody will remember the original lie.

All in all, Liar's Contests establish the relationships and conditions for bad things to happen, both now and forever more.

Game Over

To end the Liar's Contest, both parties must realize what is missing in their interaction: the other person and the context of the discussion.

Tendency to filter information to retain only what conforms to one's preferences, and to reject that does not.